Greene, E., Rashid, H. & Young, J. (2023) Preparing teachers to deal with race, culture and hegemony.   In M. Sykes and K. Ostendorf (Eds.) Child Care Justice: Transforming the System of Care for Young Children, NY: Teachers College Press

Rashid, H.M. (2022). Psychosocial adjustment to the graduate school environment. In E. Farmer (Ed.) The Black Student's Pathway to Graduate Study and Beyond: The Making of a Scholar. Charlotte: Information Age Publishing

Rashid, H.M. (2014) Significant but not sufficient: Quality early childhood education and the development of young African American boys. In Being Black is Not a Risk Factor, Washington, DC: National Black Child Development Institute, 28-31.

Rashid, H.M. (2012). Dr. Asa G. Hilliard III: Reflections on his inspiration. African American Learners, 1, 1.

Rashid, H.M. (2012) On Asa Hilliard: Interview with James C. Young, Professor, Clark Atlanta University, African American Learners, 1,1.

Rashid, H.M. (2009). From brilliant baby to child placed at risk: The perilous path of young African American boys in early childhood education. Journal of Negro Education, 78,3,347-355.

Rashid, H.M., Rashid, A.Z., and Brown, P.T. (2009). Perceptions of early schooling among young African-American Boys referred for special education. Journal of Research Association for Minority Professors, 11, 1

Rashid, H.M. (2003) Maintaining black pride and identity. In V. Farmer (Ed.) The black students guide to graduate and professional school. Westport CT: Greenwood Press.

Rashid, H.M. (2000). Professional development and the urban educator: Strategies for promoting school as community, Contemporary Education, 71, 2, 56-59.

Towns, D.P. and Rashid, H.M. (2000) Hope transcends fear: School transition in an urban cluster system. In S. Gregory (Ed.) The academic achievement of minority youth. Lanham, MD: University Press of America, 93-112.

Rashid, H.M. (1999). Beyond effective schools: Pursuing educational excellence by promoting talent development in urban youth placed at risk. Education Issues, 9, 2, 1-16.

Al-Otaibi, M. & Rashid, H.M. (1997). The history of schools in Islamic society: Historical and contemporary perspectives. American Journal of Islamic Social Sciences, Winter, 1-15.

Rashid, H.M. (1992). Secular education and the political socialization of Muslim children. American Journal of Islamic Social Sciences, 9, 3, 387-396.

Rashid, H.M. & Muhammad, Z. (1992). The Sister Clara Muhammad Schools: Pioneers in the development of Islamic education in America. The Journal of Negro Education, 61, 2, 178-185.

Rashid, H.M. (1990). In search of the path: Socialization, education and the African American Muslim. Capitol Heights, MD: Imania Publications.

Rashid, H.M. (1990). Teacher perception of the multicultural orientation of preservice education and the current occupational settings. Educational Research Quarterly, 14(1), 2-5.

Rashid, H.M. (1990). Some critical issues in the socialization and education of African American Muslims. Muslim Educational Quarterly, 7, 4, 19-26.

Rashid, H.M. (1989). Variations in teacher behavior and expectations: Implications for urban education. Occasional Paper Series No. 4, Cleveland State University, Urban Educational Research Center.

Rashid, H.M. (1989). Divergent paths in the development of African American males: A qualitative perspective. Urban Research Review, 12, 1-2, 12-13.

Rashid, H.M. (1988). The socialization of Muslim children in America: Toward a conceptual framework. American Journal of Islamic Social Sciences, 5, 2, 205-217.

Rashid, H.M. (1987). Teachers and multicultural education. In K. Swick (Ed.) Multicultural Learning in Early Childhood Education, Little Rock: Southern Association on Children Under Six, 31-35.

Rashid, H.M. (1985). Teacher behavior and teacher expectations as they relate to pupil achievement: An observational study of African-American kindergartners and first graders. In A.W. Boykin (Ed.) Empirical Research in Black Psychology, Rockville, MD: National Institute of Mental Health, 55-64.

Rashid, H.M. (1985). What the research says (and doesn't say) about quality. Quality in Early Childhood Programs: Four Perspectives, High/Scope Early Childhood Policy Papers, 3, 55-66.

Rashid, H.M. (1985). Black family research and parent education programs: The need for convergence. Contemporary Education, 56, 180-185.

Rashid, H.M. (1985). Multicultural issues in early childhood education. In K. Swick and K. Cattel (Eds.) Acting on What We Know: Guidelines for Developing Effective Programs for Young Children, Little Rock: Southern Association on Children Under Six.

Rashid, H.M. (1984). The political socialization of African American children and youth: The key to future political empowerment. Journal of Social and Behavioral Sciences, 30, 37-38.

Rashid, H.M. (1984). Promoting biculturalism in young African American children. Young Children, 39, 13-23.

Rashid, H.M. (1984). Some make it, some don't: The role of case studies in the longitudinal evaluation of preschool effects. Dimensions, January, 11-14.

Rashid, H.M. (1983). Coping with racism, classism and sexism. Day Care and Early Education, Fall, 13-15.

Brophy, J., Rohrkemper, M., Rashid, H., and Goldberger, M. (1983). Relationships between teachers' presentation of tasks and students' engagement in those tasks. Journal of Educational Psychology, 74, 544-55[cut off]

Rashid, H.M. (1981). Black family strengths and adolescent educational outcomes. In A Harrison (Ed.) Conference on Empirical Research in Black Psychology, New York: Ford Foundation, 125-135.

Rashid, H.M. (1981). Book Review - Black Children Just Keep on Growing, Portrait in Inequality: Blac[cut off] and White Children in 1980, Day Care and Early Education, Summer, 36-37.

Rashid, H.M. (1981). Early childhood education as a cultural transition for African-American children. Educational Research Quarterly, 6, 55-63.

Rashid, H.M. (1979). The impact of television on Afro-American children and youth. Journal of African-Afro-American Affairs, 3, 1-10.