

Hon. Tiffany Williams Brewer is an Associate Professor of Law at Howard University School of Law, where she teaches Evidence, Professional Responsibility, Legislation & Regulation, and Black Women & the Law. She also teaches Judicial Process and State & Local Government in the Political Science Department at Howard University's College of Arts and Sciences. In addition to her academic work, she serves as a commercial and employment arbitrator and is a former New Jersey Administrative Law Judge.

With more than 25 years of experience in legal education and public service, Professor Brewer has taught law, political science, and public administration at universities across the country. Her work extends globally, where she lectures, presents scholarly research, and conducts legal training for students, lawyers, and judges in Saudi Arabia, India, and across the African continent, including in collaboration with the African Union. Her scholarship and teaching focus on global women's leadership, administrative law, and issues of gender and racial equity within the legal profession and the juvenile and criminal justice systems.

Professor Brewer has a distinguished record of leadership across government, nonprofit, and legal sectors. She has served as a federal prosecutor, a U.S. Senate staff member, and an advocate in major law firms, as well as in senior executive roles in state government advising legislative leaders, governors, cabinet officials, and presidential campaigns.

A nationally recognized leader in the legal profession, Professor Brewer is an elected member of the American Law Institute. She currently serves as Chair of the American Bar Association Litigation Section—one of the ABA's largest sections, with more than 30,000 members—and as the Section's representative to the Union of International Advocates. Her prior leadership includes service as a Special Advisor to the ABA Commission on Women in the Profession and as the ABA's Deputy Representative to the United Nations.

In addition to her legal and academic work, Professor Brewer is an ordained pastor and co-leads a church with her husband, Rev. Dr. Eric Brewer. She is also the Founder and International President of The Esther Institute for the Advancement of Women & Girls, a global initiative dedicated to advancing women's leadership, purpose, and empowerment.
